STEWARDS DO THEIR DUTY

There was a shock outcome to yesterday's G1 1000 Guineas as Khalid Abdullah's 9-2 favorite Special Duty (GB) (Hennessy) was handed the race by the stewards upon the disqualification of Jacqueline Quest (Ire) (Rock of Gibraltar {Ire}). Nosed out by the Henry Cecil-trained 66-1 shot, the Juddmonte homebred was judged to have been carried across the track in the pulsating final drive to the line. Special Duty settled last of the small group racing against the stand's rail, and was moved up by Stephane Pasquier to join Jacqueline Quest and Tom Queally before the furlong pole. With the rest of the runners in the centre and far side out of sight, Special Duty kept battling gamely as Jacqueline Quest went off a true line. Special Duty lost the bob, but found herself in the winner's enclosure nevertheless. "Stephane said that she would have won easily, but the other filly kept drifting," Special Duty's trainer Criquette Head-Maarek said. "I don't like to win like that and feel very sorry for the others, but I think the stewards are right." Jacqueline Quest would have made history as the longest-priced winner of the race had she been allowed to keep the victory. Cont. p2

PREAKNESS NEXT FOR SUPER SAVER

Trainer Todd Pletcher reported yesterday that G1 Kentucky Derby winner Super Saver (Maria's Mon) came out of Saturday's win in fine shape and will now be pointed towards the May 15 G1 Preakness S. Pletcher celebrated his first Derby victory in understated fashion. "We went back to our hotel and had some dinner with family and friends, like we always do," Pletcher said. "Though, I must say, this one was more fun." Super Saver is expected to ship to Baltimore May 12. Pletcher's other Derby runners were also doing well the morning after the Classic, but only one of the three is possible for the Preakness. Cont. p3

Special Duty needed the help of the stewards, but she gave trainer Criquelette Head-Maarek her fourth victory in this Classic, and completed a French-trained Guineas double on a weekend of surprise turns. The chestnut was the long-time ante-post favorite for this prize after her authoritative win in the G1 Cheveley Park S. at this venue in October, but the burning issue this spring was a potential lack of stamina. She had performed at such a high level over sprint trips at two, when successful in the G2 Prix Robert Papin over 5 1/2 furlongs in July and when runner-up in the six-furlong G1 Prix Morny in August, that Newmarket's stiff mile held certain fears. Those were brought to the surface by her performance when third as the 9-10 favorite in the G3 Prix Imprudence at Maisons-Laffitte Apr. 8, where the seventh panel appeared beyond her. Connections clung to the belief that her tame finish there was a result of her needing her comeback on testing ground, and the form started to look solid 24 hours before this renewal when runner-up Evading Tempete (GB) (Dubai Destination) took the G3 Premio Regina Elena. Keen early anchored at the back of the seven runners against the favored stand's rail, Special Duty was delivered wide as Jacqueline Quest was committed passing the quarter pole. Tom Queally changed his whip hand as his mount rolled right into the path of the favorite, and that may have been the decisive factor in the stewards' subsequent decision. "It is difficult to win like this, but my filly came so fast and should definitely have won," Stephane Pasquier said. "She proved that she is a Group 1 filly--I wasn't sure beforehand she would stay so well, but she showed something special."

Henry Cecil said of the demoted Jacqueline Quest, "She took the winner across the course, so Special Duty deserved it, and maybe I'll get my own back at Royal Ascot. She has only just started to come to herself and I didn't really think she would get the mile at this stage, but [owner] Noel [Martin] thought she probably would, so he was right. It was an amazing run and she will improve as the year goes on." Before learning of the decision, Queally said, "She battled hard and rose to the occasion when it mattered. She wandered around a bit, but was on top at the end and has a real heart."

Special Duty's trainer Criquelette Head-Maarek was later pondering the winner's options. "She had a bad winter and I wasn't worried that she was beaten in her prep," she said. "We had to be 100 percent today, but she was beaten in the prep by two fillies trained in southwest France, where the weather had been warmer. She'll go back in the tunnel tonight and we've got two weeks this year until the G1 Poule d'Essai des Pouliches and so maybe we could do that." Gile Na Greine (Ire) (Galileo {Ire}) was also in the thick of the action and was a place below her full-sister Cuis Ghaire (Ire), who found only Ghanaati (Giant's Causeway) too strong last year. Trainer Jim Bolger commented, "A mile is the bare minimum for her and I wish the race was over nine furlongs. She stays well and could go for the [May 12] G3 Musidora S. at York. She could be an Oaks filly."

Explaining the Decision...

Stipendiary Steward William Nunneley was in the spotlight after the reversal of the placings and said, "The question we had to consider is whether Special Duty lost her chance of winning due to interference. We looked at the film and Jacqueline Quest drifted right. They touched and she continued to go across. Tom Queally had his whip in his left hand and Jacqueline Quest continued to drift. The distance was a nose, which is just a pixel on the photograph. It was not a hard decision for us to make, in that it was that small a margin. We have suspended Tom Queally for three days [May 16 to 18] for careless riding." Click for the Racing Post chart or the free brisnet.com catalogue-style pedigree. Preakness Next for Derby Champ (cont. from p1)

Pletcher's Devil May Care (Malibu Moon), 10th in the Run for the Roses, and Discreetly Mine (Mineshaft), 13th, will skip the middle leg of the Triple Crown, but Mission Impazible (Unbridled's Song) is being considered.

Trainer Nick Zito reported that Derby runner-up Ice Box (Pulpit) came out of his troubled trip well, but was uncertain to go to the Preakness. "It was a tough race to lose, obviously, but a great race to be thankful for. We have to be thankful for the horse we've got, and knock wood, it looks like he came back good; that's the most important thing. He definitely had an excuse, that's for sure. The winner was very good and Ice Box was just as good. He was just as good as the winner, he just didn't get the chance to win." As for the Preakness, Zito added, "I won't make any decision until next week. But to run the horse off a six-week layoff and to see him have to check three times makes it hard to run back in two weeks and then again three weeks later. If we had won, it would have been a different story." Zito's other Derby runner, Jackson Bend (Hear No Evil), 12th, is considered possible for the Preakness.

GIII Gotham S. winner Awesome Act (Awesome Again), a disappointing 19th in the Derby, will remain at Churchill and join the barn of Steve Asmussen. "We thought he'd go in the slop," said Wayne Tanner, assistant to British trainer Jeremy Noseda. "Whether he got a lot of kick-back and he wouldn't go forward in it, I don't know. He didn't blow very long; he was bright enough after the race. Maybe, he just didn't let himself down on a sloppy track. No complaints; he won the Gotham and finished third in a Grade I in the Wood Memorial. Unfortunately, it didn't happen [Saturday]."

Derby Wagering Increases 7.8%

A crowd of 155,804 braved the rainy weather at Churchill Downs Saturday--up from the 153,563 that witnessed the 2009 Run for the Roses. Combined attendance for both Oaks and Derby days was 271,850. In 2009, that figure was 258,430. Total wagering from all sources on the Kentucky Derby reached $112.7 million, up 7.8 percent. Total wagering for the 13-race card was $162.7 million, an increase of 4.3 percent. Wagering figures are preliminary and do not include separate pool wagering in international markets, including Hong Kong, which was simulcasting the race for the first time. Churchill Downs did report equipment failures at AmTote's Oregon hub, which caused wagering problems at TwinSpires.com, Arlington Park, Fair Grounds and other wagering outlets. "We were very pleased with the level of wagering on the Oaks and Derby race cards and seeing the overwhelmingly positive responses of our customers, both on and off-track, as validation of our efforts to present our product in new and innovative ways that can be embraced by core and casual fans alike," said Churchill Downs Racetrack President Kevin Flanery. "We are sorry customers throughout the country experienced difficulty placing wagers on the Kentucky Derby and the undercard and we promise to get a full and complete accounting from AmTote of the failures today."

Cutlass Bay opened his account with a win at Argentan in his only juvenile start and repeated the dose in his sophomore bow at Fontainebleau in March last year. His three-year-old campaign was curtailed by injury after victory in the May 12 G2 Prix Greffulhe at Saint-Cloud, but he came off the shelf to garner the Apr. 11 G2 Prix d'Harcourt going 10 furlongs here last time. The eventual winner was restrained after a sharp exit and raced in a handy fourth behind a sedate pace. Inching closer off the home turn, he came under pressure to challenge inside the final quarter mile and overcame late steering problems to assert superiority over Shalanaya. The runner-up's jockey, Christophe Lemaire, lost his whip when asking for maximum effort passing the eighth pole, but it had no ultimate bearing on the result. "Cutlass Bay is a lovely horse, who is obviously improving with every race," commented Godolphin's representative Diana Cooper. "His future will be discussed between Sheikh Mohammed and Andre Fabre and, of course, there are plenty of options for him. The [G1] Coronation Cup [at Epsom June 4] and the [G1] Prince of Wales's S. [at Royal Ascot June 16] being just two of them in the near future.

His Highness The Aga Khan's G1 Prix de l'Opera victress Shalanaya ran a game race in defeat, but was unsuited by having to force the pace after slow initial fractions. "Sadly, there was not enough early pace and Christophe Lemaire did well not to fight her all the way around," explained racing manager Georges Rimaud. "She prefers waiting tactics, but it was a very good performance to be beaten by a top-class four-year-old in her first run of the year." Click for the Racing Post chart or the free brisnet.com catalogue-style pedigree.

After several near misses, Jaguar Mail picked up his first group success with this game effort. The bay ran second in the G2 Megiro Kinen in his lone on-the-board effort from five starts last term, but was beaten just a half-length when fourth in the Dec. 13 G1 Hong Kong Vase. Last time out, he was a half-length runner-up in the Feb. 20 G2 Kyoto Kinen. Settled in the middle of the pack early here, Jaguar Mail accelerated when they hit the straight, flying through his final three furlongs in :33.70 to catch Meiner Kitz in the shadow of the wire. Click for the Racing Post chart.

Zagora broke through at first asking with a win in a newcomers' contest at Deauville Aug. 7, doubling up in a conditions heat at Chantilly Sept. 2.

She closed her juvenile campaign with a fourth in the Oct. 20 G3 Prix des Reservoirs back at Deauville. She was acquired by owner Martin Schwartz following a second in the Apr. 1 Listed Prix La Camargo at Saint-Cloud on seasonal return last time and laid down an impressive Classic marker with an imperious victory for her new stable in this trial. Stalking the leader two lengths off the pace in second from the outset, she cruised to the front soon after turning for home, she lengthened clear of toiling rivals approaching the final eighth and geared down late to account for G1 Prix Marcel Boussac runner-up On Verra in impressive style. "I really have to pay tribute to [previous trainer] Yves de Nicolay, who handled this filly before me," admitted trainer Jean-Claude Rouget. "She only arrived in my yard 12 days ago and the win is all down to his work. What was interesting was not that she won, but the way she won, which was really quite impressive. Last year, with Stacelita, we had four weeks between the [G1 Prix] Saint-Alary and the [G1 Prix de] Diane, but this year there are only three weeks between the two races. I don't think we will make both races, so she will instead head straight to the Diane [at Chantilly June 13]." Click for the Racing Post chart.

Rising above claiming and handicap company, Blek registered wins in last term's Listed Prix La Moskowa at Saint-Cloud, the Listed Prix Scaramouche at Chantilly and the Listed Prix Denisy back at Saint-Cloud. He closed 2009 with a second in the Dec. 6 Listed Prix Max Sicard at Toulouse and came back this year to win the Listed Prix Right Royal at Saint-Cloud once more last time Apr. 13. Positioned in a stalking second for most of this marathon, he eased to the front at the top of the straight and came under a final quarter drive to hold on in game fashion. Connections had cause for concern when the claxon sounded immediately after the race, but Blek survived a lengthy stewards' enquiry to record a career-high win. "Blek is such a brave horse, who fights his heart out every time and always runs his race, be it going left-handed, going right-handed, on good ground or on soft ground," said trainer Elie Lellouche. "We will now bring him back here for the [May 23 G2] Prix Vicomtesse Vigier." Click for the Racing Post chart.

Also Ran: Three Moons (Ire), Annabelle's Charm (Ire), Plaisterer (GB), Moonlife (Ire), Badiat Alzaman (Ire).
Scratched: Chantilly Tiffany (GB), Sariska (GB).

This contest lost much luster with the scratching of last year's G1 English and Irish Oaks heroine Sariska (GB) (Pivotal {GB}) due to a minor foot injury, but Strawberrydaiquiri emerged best in her absence despite being forced to battle for the spoils. Having rattled off a trio of listed wins in Sandown's Distaff and Ascot's Valiant S. in July and the Atalanta S. back at the former venue in August, the grey was fourth in the G1 Sun Chariot S. over a mile here when last seen in October. Racing keenly early towards the fore of the main group racing up the centre of the track, she had significant ground to make up on the leader Honimiere, who had ploughed a lone furrow against the stand's rail. Getting to that rival approaching the furlong pole, she dug in gamely up the rising ground to deny another upset. "Neil [Callan, on Honimiere] had nicked a few lengths and we weren't going that quick in the middle, so I had to get after her four out and so she got a little bit tired up the hill," jockey Ryan Moore explained. "It was a big effort to make up that ground and she will only improve." Click for the Racing Post chart. Video, courtesy of Racing UK.

impressive 14-length score on debut at Dresden in his only prior go Oct. 10, and booked his ticket to the July 18 G1 Deutsches Derby at Hamburg with another dominant performance in this trial. Travelling sweetly in midfield for much of the contest, he made his bid on the inside in the straight and stayed on strongly inside the final quarter mile to easily impose his authority.

Cozi Rosie, a back-to-back winner on the main track at Santa Anita over the winter, was fifth in the Mar. 6 GI Santa Anita Oaks before moving to the turf for a troubled seventh-place effort in the Apr. 3 GI Providencia S. last time out. Never far from the front, the chestnut filly rolled into contention in upper stretch and reeled in the leaders to win going away. "We kind of experimented with her last time out trying to get her to relax," explained winning rider Mike Smith. "We were on the rail, and for a second it looked like she could get through, but she had to steady. Today, I moved her a little sooner than I wanted, but it worked out okay. This was another good learning experience for her and I think she'll move forward in the [July 3] GI American Oaks, if that's where they choose to run her."

Trainer John Sadler confirmed the Oaks will likely be next for Cozi Rosie. "We knew she was capable of winning this," Sadler added. "It's always good to win a graded stakes, especially with a filly." Click for the brisnet.com chart or the brisnet.com PPs.

G1 Chilean Derby heroine Belle Watling stamped herself the best horse in Chile with this decisive victory. The filly, who garnered the Quadruple Crown on grass at Club Hipico in 2009, added to her resume as she picked off the most important test of the season at this track. Winner of the Dec. 27 G2 Gran Clasico Coronacion to cap the season, the dark bay switched to the dirt to take a listed event at Hipodromo Chile Apr. 10. She will now be pointed for the G1 Gran Premio Latinoamericano here in September. Plans are to send Belle Watling to Argentina to run in the G1 Carlos Pellegrini in December, and then to await the 2010 edition of the G1 Latinoamericano, which will be held at San Isidro. ## ABBEY STILL ON COURSE FOR EPSOM

St Nicholas Abbey (Ire) (Montjeu {Ire}) will head for the G1 Epsom Derby despite Saturday's reversal at Newmarket, trainer Aidan O'Brien announced yesterday. Only sixth as the even-money favorite for the G1 2000 Guineas, Derrick Smith's G1 Racing Post Trophy winner is being trained for the June 5 mile-and-a-half Classic. "St Nicholas Abbey ran quite well considering he raced a bit fresh early, but was coming home well at the finish," he said. "We will see how he comes out of the race and if everything goes according to plan, we will aim him for the Derby next." O'Brien also revealed that the seventh Fencing Master (GB) (Oratorio {Ire}) could tackle the G1 Irish 2000 Guineas at The Curragh in three weeks' time. "Fencing Master ran well for his first start of the season, he would probably have preferred a stronger pace as well," O'Brien added. "If all is well in the coming weeks, we would like to go to the Irish Guineas next with him."

HANNON EYES TARGETS FOR GUINEAS PAIR

Richard Hannon was yesterday contemplating the immediate future of his G1 2000 Guineas second and third Dick Turpin (Ire) (Arakan) and Canford Cliffs (Ire) (Tagula {Ire}). With the G1 Irish 2000 Guineas on the agenda for the former, who was beaten 1 1/4 lengths by Makfi (GB) (Dubawi {Ire}) in Saturday's mile Classic, the East Everleigh-based conditioner was analysing the effort of Canford Cliffs, who was a further half-length behind. "We always maintained that the mile would be no problem and, while we will keep all our options open, I would think he'll head for the [June 15] G1 St James's Palace S. at Royal Ascot," Hannon said of Canford Cliffs. "It would give him that bit extra time. Ryan [Moore] said that Dick Turpin ran all the way to the line and, he too would have appreciated the rain coming a day earlier. He'd be a shoe-in for the [June 16] G3 Jersey S. at the Royal meeting, but he is a Group 2 winner, so I suppose we'll have to have a crack at the Irish 2000 Guineas."

TDN & A

Mike Repole didn't have a horse in this year's Kentucky Derby, but he'll get there. With deep pockets, a passion for the game and with Todd Pletcher now guiding a large portion of his stable, it's almost inevitable that the co-founder and former president of Glaceau, the makers of vitaminwater, soon will have an impact on the sport's biggest races.

Within the last few years, he has put a renewed emphasis on putting together a quality stable, a change of strategy after he began as an owner in 2004 with a stable that consisted mainly of mid- and low-level claimers. At the last two Keeneland September sales, he spent more than $2.4 million combined while zeroing in on horses in the $100,000 to $200,000 range.

Repole, 41, could no doubt afford to buy even more expensive horses. In 2007, Glaceau, the makers of vitaminwater, was sold to Coca Cola for a reported $4.1 billion. Currently, he is the chairman of Pirate's Booty snacks and Energy Kitchen, a chain of fast-food restaurants that feature healthy meals.

The sale of vitaminwater put more money in Repole's bank account, but it appears to have done little else to change him. A self-proclaimed "kid from Queens," he is often found hanging out in the grandstand at Aqueduct dressed in jeans, a baggy sweatshirt and wearing a baseball cap.

Repole, a graduate of St. John's University, was the leading owner in New York in 2009 with 51 wins and also led the owners' standings at Monmouth and the Meadowlands.

He is an advocate for the sport and for its competitors. Repole recently organized a retirement ceremony for his 13-year-old claimer Cool N Collective, who was still racing earlier this year. In conjunction with NYRA, Repole brought attention to horse retirement and donated $30,000, split among three horse rescue groups.

Recently, the Thoroughbred Daily News sat down with Repole (pronounced rah-POLE-ee) to get his thoughts on his ascension in racing, his future plans, how the sport can better market itself and even why he doesn't seem to own a necktie.

TDN: We know you grew up in Queens, loved the Mets and dreamt of one day being the coach of the St. John's basketball team. But why horse racing? Where did that interest come from?

MR: I've always loved sports. My major in college was sports management. I love horse racing. I love college basketball, the New York Mets and the Denver Broncos. In fact, blue and orange, my colors, come from my love of the Mets and the Denver Broncos. Growing up, I used to go to the track with my friends. I grew up in Middle Village, Queens, and would walk to Woodhaven Boulevard, take the train to Rockaway Boulevard and then walk over past the White Castle and go to Aqueduct Racetrack. I was 14, 15, 16 years old at the time. It was before I could drive. I didn't have more than seven bucks in my pocket. It was about betting and watching the races and trying to handicap. I fell in love with it. The Cool N Collectives of the world were my superstars. I couldn't go to Belmont because I couldn't get there. Aqueduct was my haven. I was a young kid who loved sports, and horse racing happened to be one of them. I liked the competitive nature of handicapping and the feeling you got when you were right about a race.

TDN: You've said you wished you could have been a major league manager or a college basketball coach. And you've been in charge of a very successful company. That would lead anyone to believe that you are a hands-on owner. Is that the case?

Mike Repole

MR: Probably the best horse I own is Overcommunication, who is in Todd Pletcher's barn, but is injured now. I think his name tells you something about my style. There is communication and then there is micro-managing. I use the same style in business and in sports. I know that Todd Pletcher is one of the best trainers in the country. We'll talk about the horses and what's working and what isn't. I believe in communicating, but it's not 'one-way Mike.' I give a lot of latitude to the people I hire, whether that's a VP of operations, a VP of sales or a trainer. If things work, I'll bust their chops and take all the credit. If things don't work, I'll complain. But that's all in jest. Just like my VP of sales better know more about sales than I do, I expect Todd Pletcher to know more about training than I do. He had better be a better trainer than Mike Repole.

The bottom line is, I like to win races and I think letting the trainer do his job is the best way to do that. Last year, I was leading owner in New York with 51 wins and I had 148 for the year. I'm also proud that I was the leading owner in New Jersey. I won the Monmouth and Meadowlands meets. I've never looked this up, but how many people could say they won the New York and New Jersey titles all in the same year? I don't think anyone has ever done that.

TDN: You ran your first horse in 2004, but seemed to take a wait-and-see approach. You didn't have many horses and had no expensive horses. What was your thinking back then?

MR: I always knew I was going to be in this game, but I was building a billion-dollar company in vitamin water and I had to focus on that 100 percent. When I got into the game, I got in with one private purchase and a couple of claimers. I always believed you needed to be a student of the game first. You see a lot of owners with money go into this game and spend $2 million, $3 million the first couple of years and think they know everything. I'm still learning every single day about this business. I would suggest that a new owner go in with training wheels on. Buy one horse. Even with a claimer, you can learn something. Talk to different trainers. Talk to different people in the game. I don't want to blame trainers or bloodstock agents, but sometimes they get a guy like Mike Repole, who has money, and they don't think long term. They have a short-term vision and think, 'Hey, the guy is going to put a couple million bucks into the game. You know what, let me get him five $300,000 horses ASAP.' Then two break down, and two can't run and one's just OK. The owners wind up with a bad taste in their mouths and get out.

TDN: Do you have any other advice for prospective new owners?

MR: As an owner, you can't go into it thinking you're going to make money. To me, 95 percent of the people lose money as owners and the other 5 percent are lying to you. This is a game that when you go in, you have to go in because you have a passion for it and you're excited about it and you're not looking to make money out of it. It's like when you go to the movies and you pay $16 for your tickets. You don't expect to come out of the movies with a profit. People get into the game and they get in over their heads. I talk to trainers every day and there are a lot of owners who aren't paying their bills right now. Then the trainers can't pay their bills. There's a trickle-down effect. At the end of the day, everyone suffers. Like who's going to donate to horse rescue when they can't even pay their vet or board bills?

You need to get into this game with money you consider found money. It has to be money where you can say, 'I'm getting into a partnership and am going to spend $15,000, and if I lose it, it's a trip to the Caribbean.' You have to do it because you have a passion for it.

I might be in this game for 10 years and lose $1 million or $2 million a year, and all of sudden win the Triple Crown and sell the horse for $100 million. But that's not the plan. I want to be in Grade Is. I want to win Grade Is. I want to be in the Kentucky Derby and the Belmont S. I want to be in the Breeders' Cup. I know that might not happen. You have to be willing to put a certain amount of money into this game knowing you might not get it back financially.

What you should hope to get out of it is the excitement, the fun, being able to bring 20 friends out and getting them into your winner's circle picture. These are the types of excitement you can get from racing that you can't buy.

TDN: Is that another reason why you concentrated on claimers early on? You were just hoping to have fun?

MR: When I was growing up, I barely knew the difference between a $5,000 claimer or an allowance horse or a stakes horse, other than a Kentucky Derby horse. I'm the most competitive guy you will ever meet in your life. I almost get the same excitement from a $5,000 race as I do from a stakes race. To me, a win is a win. Yes, it was part of my strategy because, No. 1, you can learn a lot about the business with claimers. The second thing is, it's also quick action, and when I first got into the game it was pretty cool to claim a horse for $12,500 and put him in for $17,500 and win. I like the claiming game. It's like poker. Who do you move up? Who do you move down? I had a lot of fun playing that game.

TDN: Nonetheless, you seem ready to move on to bigger, richer races and better horses. What is your current game plan?

MR: I am now starting to focus on the quality over the quantity. At one time I had 125 horses and I'm probably down to 90 now. The 90 horses I have now include a $500,000 Bernardini I just bought, a $200,000 Tiznow, a $260,000 Unbridled's Song. Instead of buying a $10,000 or $20,000 claimer, I'm buying $200,000 horses. I had to learn the game first.

TDN: Another change to your approach has been in your choice of trainers. You employ more than one, but it's clear that Todd Pletcher has become a big part of your operation. Why Pletcher?

MR: You're right, and I am building a really good relationship with Todd. He's 42. I'm 41. But I look much younger than him and you can tell him I said that. Most of his owners he calls Mr. this or Mr. that. They are 60 to 80 years old. I say you call all your other owners Mr. something or other, I'd like you to call me Mr. Repole. I like to bust his chops.

Watching Todd work is like watching Rick Pitino work a practice. If he weren't a trainer, he'd be successful at whatever he chose to do. For a guy who is an entrepreneur and loves to read about the Mark Cubans and Richard Bransons of the world, watching somebody like that do his craft and to have a first-hand seat at it is fascinating. He's a very impressive guy. By the end of the spring, I will have 20 horses in his barn, more than Evans and Tabor. That's not undermining my other trainers, like Bruce Brown or Mike Hushion, but, right now, I'm very comfortable with Todd.

TDN: Looking at the money you made with vitaminwater, you could no doubt afford to spend more than you do at the sales. Will we ever see the day when you go for the $1 million-and-above yearlings?

MR: People forget that I didn't own all of vitaminwater and that $4.1 billion didn't go all to me. It's not known publicly how much I did make from the sale, but it definitely wasn't $4.1 billion. But I did do very, very well.

The $600,000 or $700,000 horse could be part of the progression I am making, but I don't think I'd ever spend $1 million on a horse. If I ever had the chance to buy a horse like Dunkirk, who cost $3.7 million, I wouldn't do it. I'd rather buy 10 horses for $375,000 each.

In all my businesses, it's always been 80-percent passion, energy, hard work, commitment and dedication and 20-percent luck. I am one of the most fortunate people you will ever meet, but I've also learned that the harder I work the luckier I seem to get. In horse racing, everything is the opposite. It's 20-percent hard work and dedication and 80-percent luck. Look at what happened with Buddy's Saint. Look at what happens to so many of these great horses. At end of the day, it's a numbers game. The more chances you get and the more bullets you have, the better off you are.

TDN: When you come to the track, you don't look like a wealthy horse owner. No disrespect meant by this, but you look like a lot of blue-collar horseplayers who hang out at Aqueduct. Where are the $2,000 suits?

MR: I'm 41, but, at the end of the day, I am the same person I was when I was 13 years old, going to the track, a poor kid from Middle Village, Queens. A lot of the friends I have now are the same friends who I used to go to Rangers games with and sit in the blue seats or the upper deck at Shea Stadium. I have a great family and great group of friends. I have a wonderful wife who I've been married to for 10 years and dated for 10 years before that. I am who I am. I wear my jeans and my sweatshirt and my baseball caps. That's who I am. I'm not going to change because I built a company and sold it for $4.1 billion, and I'm not going to change because I own 100 racehorses. This is who I am. If you follow me around at Aqueduct and Belmont, I go there with my brother who is a cop, and I always talk to the fans. I don't hide on the fourth floor. Saratoga is beautiful and I love it, but I grew up going to Aqueduct Tomorrow, I'll be there for the first, second and fifth races and I'll get a turkey sandwich, get my Racing Form and sit on the second floor with all the other fans. It's where I came from and where I belong.

TDN: You helped make vitaminwater a smash success and a national brand. To do so, you had to have been pretty good at marketing. How can the industry better sell horse racing?

MR: We have a tremendous sport here, but it is embarrassing how poorly it is marketed. There has to be a national racing commission or something along those lines. To start with, it's ridiculous that we have different rules in different states or that this medication is OK in one state and not another. You need to have that and you need an organization that can get things done for the overall good of the sport. That we couldn't get Rachel Alexandra and Zenyatta to race against each other last year was terrible. It's embarrassing that one guy from Arkansas had to step up and try to get it done. It should have happened sooner, and it should have happened in New York or California.

We can attract new fans and owners, but racing can't have the kind of dirty image that it has. People think the game is only for multi-millionaires or for degenerate gamblers, with no in-between. Saratoga proves that you can have 30,000 fans that are just normal people who want to go out and have fun and bet a $100 on the card.

In a certain way, I made Cool N Collective a star, and he was a claimer. I got more feedback and more e-mails on that horse than any, and his retirement story got a lot of good press. I was willing to step up because if it weren't for these horses, there wouldn't be a sport.

There are so many more things this sport can do. New York doesn't work with California and California doesn't work with New York. There's nothing like they have with NASCAR or with the offices of Major League Baseball. Now, Monmouth will have $80,000 purses and New York is reacting to that by cutting out overnight stakes. Instead of working in concert and saying we're both local tracks, why don't we work on things together, everybody is out for themselves. It's sad.

Even with NYRA, and I think they do a great job, there should be more interaction with the fans. They should have interviews with the trainers between every race. When they're walking out of the paddock with nine minutes to post, let them grab Mike Hushion and have them ask him what he thinks of his favorite in the race. Let them grab Mike Repole and ask me about my horse.

Make the consumer feel good about the experience and make them want to come back. It's like when you go to a restaurant. If you get good service, a great meal and you feel good about the experience, what do you do? You come back. If you get treated like crap and your meal stinks and your service is terrible you won't come back. We've had too much of that in horse racing.

A few years back, I got Shaquille O'Neal to come to the track for vitaminwater and dress in a jockey's outfit and put him in a commercial for vitaminwater. That's the sort of thing racing doesn't do nearly enough of. I got him to go to the Belmont and I helped them get a lot of coverage for Cool N Collective. There are things I have done with one percent of my time.

But nobody steps up and says this is what we have to do and we have to work together. I can't blame NYRA, because the state and the Governor really have them handcuffed, but the sport has to be marketed better. There are a lot of good stories at the track, and we have to get them out there.

Racing is in the Stone Age. Have better restaurants. Aqueduct hasn't updated their TVs since I was 13. The chairs were the same chairs they had when I had my communion back in 1976. How can we attract fans when we have facilities like that? It's a great sport but I think we make people get turned off by it.

TDN: Now that your stable has a better caliber of horses, what are your major goals as an owner?

MR: I want to be an advocate for the game. I want to get tremendous fun out of this. I want to continue to be the owner who pays his bills on time, if not early. I want to win big races. I've won stakes races, but I've never won a graded stakes. I keep coming close. Go Go Shoot had the lead by two lengths in the Vanderbilt. Driven by Success comes into the stretch in the Met Mile in front and I think I'm home. I can't win a graded stakes. It's like I'm cursed.

If there's one race I want to win, it's the Belmont S. I grew up in New York. I'd have 2,000 people there with me. I'm a kid from Queens who loves New York racing. Would I turn down the Kentucky Derby? Of course not. But if you told me I could only win one race, it would be the Belmont S. It's the biggest race in New York, and I'm a New York guy.

Franny Freud was four-for-six last year, with black-type wins in the Ontario Debutante S. at Woodbine, the Lady Finger S. at Finger Lakes and the Fifth Avenue S. in the mud at Aqueduct in her seasonal finale Nov. 15. The bay has stepped it up in her two starts this term, running second by 3/4 of a length behind Amen Hallelujah (Montbrook) in the Jan. 16 GII Santa Ynez S. at Santa Anita before going gate-to-wire in the Apr. 7 GII Beaumont S. on the Poly at Keeneland. She was a deserving heavy favorite against fellow Big Apple-breds here. Content to let So N So take the con through the opening quarter, Franny Freud was narrowly in front after a half in :45.43, but powered away from her overmatched rivals down the lane and was taken in hand late to win as much the best. "She's gotten better and better as she's grown and matured, and who knows how good she could be," trainer John Terranova II said. "She was really impressive in the Beaumont at Keeneland, and we wanted to see how she would come back to the dirt here. There are races coming up here at Belmont like the Prioress [GI, July 4] that we'd consider. We'll see how she comes back, but it looked like she did that really well. She's just a special, special girl." Terranova swept both Belmont stakes yesterday with offspring of Freud. Click for the brisnet.com chart or Video, sponsored by Taylor Made.

General Maximus, a four-length debut winner versus state-bred foes at this track last July, returned with a front-running Gulfstream allowance tally Jan. 30. The chestnut tired to fourth behind Radiohead (GB) (Johannesburg) when stretched to a mile last time out at Gulfstream Feb. 27 for trainer Joe Imperio. Heavily favored back in against fellow New York-breds, General Maximus went right to the front and cut out fractions of :22.32, :45.24 and 1:09.77 en route to an easy score. "We haven't had this one for long; he spent the winter at Gold Mark Farm in the care of Todd Quast and Karl Keegan," explained winning trainer John Terranova. "I had seen him about six weeks ago down there and he looked great. They did a great job with him and we've had him a couple of weeks now, breezed him the one time, but he came in awesome shape. He's just a really talented colt and he looks like the real deal. From here we'll get to know him a little bit better and see how he comes back off of this." Winning rider Javier Castellano added, "I was completely confident today. I really like the horse. He's a very honest horse, and today he showed up. He's a speed horse who likes to be in front, so he enjoyed the trip. I asked him a little bit just to see what I had, and as soon as he responded I dropped my hands."  Feilden S. last time Apr. 14, and benefitted from an astute front-running ride by Frankie Dettori to claim this G1 Epsom Oaks trial with a degree of panache. Leading from the break, she was shaken up when threatened approaching the final quarter mile and stayed on strongly under a drive up the hill to hold on in cozy fashion. "Frankie said we should try 10 furlongs after the run at the Craven meeting and I'm pleased it worked out," trainer Mark Johnston tol PA Sport. "We

Runner-up to She's Our Mark in this race 12 months ago, ☆ "TDN Rising Star" ☆ Chinese White has since made her presence felt at the top level and came back here in foal to Cape Cross (Ire). Last year's G3 Dance Design S. and G2 Blandford S. winner, who had signed off with a disappointing effort when only 10th in the G1 Premio Lydia Tesio at the Capannelle in October, stalked the early pace in fourth before arriving at the front full of run with 1 1/2 furlongs remaining. Quickening away from last year's winner and Ballydoyle's Remember When, who did best of the sophomore division, the grey was eased close home. Conditioner Dermot Weld told Irish Racing Online, "She did that impressively. She is in foal to Cape Cross, that was just confirmed on Friday, so we have a nice bit of time. There are a number of possibilities. The G1 Pretty Polly S. [at The Curragh June 26] being the most obvious, that's the main reason we've kept her in training. One of a trio of Aidan O'Brien trainees in a race used by the conditioner in recent times to launch Landseer (GB) (Danehill), Spartacus (Ire) (Danehill), Antonius Pius (Danzig) and Henrythenavigator (Kingmambo), Jackaroo was sent off the 7-2 second favorite. He broke smartly to grab the rail on this turning track and race behind stable companion Eskimo (Ire) (Galileo {Ire}). Seizing a gap on the rail to lead approaching the eighth pole, the 230,000gns TATOCT yearling quickly asserted and stayed true as his barnmate took an errant path, remaining in total command en route to a two-length success. Oor Jock (Ire) (Shamardal), the son of Katdogawn (GB) (Bahhare), was the 3-1 favorite, but could never make an impression and filled fourth spot behind the Ballydoyle runners. "I liked him, his mother was a good horse and I used ride her out, so it was nice to get the spin," winning jockey James Heffernan told Irish Racing online. "The penny has really dropped with him." Lifetime Record: 1-1-0-0, €10,695. Click for the Racing Post chart. Video, courtesy attheraces.com.
