DEAL STRUCK SAVES MARYLAND RACING

Less than 24 hours after a proposal for live racing dates in Maryland was shot down, Governor Martin O'Malley brokered a deal between the state's tracks and the Maryland Thoroughbred Horsemen's Association and Maryland Horse Breeders Association to conduct a full 146-day schedule at Laurel and Pimlico in 2011. The agreement was announced following a meeting at the State House in Annapolis. "This is a good day for the entire industry," Maryland Jockey Club President Tom Chuckas commented. "I would like to personally thank Governor O'Malley and chief legislative officer Joe Bryce for their support during this process. This discussion provides a foundation for continuing efforts to create a long-term solution to restoring Maryland racing to prominence." The agreement, which was unanimously approved by the racing commission late Wednesday afternoon, calls for the Maryland Thoroughbred Horsemen's Association to contribute $1.7 million and the state to transfer $3-4 million from the state's slot-machine program to help pay for the Maryland Jockey Club's operations, according to the Baltimore Sun. The slots revenue had been earmarked for track improvements. In partnership with Penn National Gaming, MI Developments is the majority owner of the Maryland Jockey Club. "I am pleased to announce that an agreement has been reached, and that industry representatives, track owners, horsemen and breeders were able to come together to reach a consensus that will allow for a full season of racing in 2011," O'Malley said in a statement. "Today's agreement not only keeps Maryland's treasured Preakness S. where it belongs, but it helps protect the thousands of jobs that depend on our rich history of horse racing." Maryland THA General Counsel Alan Foreman added, "Obviously we are thrilled there will be a full racing schedule in Maryland in 2011, and I am especially thrilled for the 10,000 people employed in the Maryland racing industry. This is a short-term solution to a long-term problem, but, in fairness, we were put in a tough spot with the results of the November election. There was a really good chance there would not be racing. These were very difficult negotiations with track ownership, probably the most difficult I've ever been involved with and I was not very optimistic going in to meeting or afterwards for that matter."

Governor Martin O'Malley

HARLAN'S HOLIDAY TO WINSTAR

Kenny Truitt's WinStar Farm has acquired a significant interest in Harlan's Holiday (Harlan--Christmas In Aiken, by Affirmed), and will stand the sire of 2010 leading sprinter and GI Alfred G. Vanderbilt H. hero Majesticperfection in 2011. The 11-year-old's fee will remain at $25,000, stands and nurses. Harlan's Holiday began his career at stud at Breerton Jones's Airdrie Stud in Midway, Kentucky. "Harlan's Holiday is a stallion we've always thought a lot of, and we're excited about the opportunity to build on the early success he's achieved while at Airdrie," said Elliott Walden, president of WinStar Farm. "He's a proven stallion that represents the quality we continue to strive for at WinStar. And to that end, Harlan's Holiday greatly compliments our growing stallion roster, as well as the farm's broodmare band. For the money, we feel like Harlan's Holiday and Bluegrass Cat now give us the best one-two punch from the Storm Cat line." The 2002 GI Florida Derby and GI Toyota Blue Grass S. winner's first crop hit the ground running in 2007, led by GI CashCall Futurity winner Into Mischief and multiple Classic-placed graded stakes winner Denis of Cork. To date, Harlan's Holiday has sired no fewer than 18 stakes winners--seven graded--with progeny earnings of nearly $14 million. "When we studied his recent books of mares, we not only found him to be very popular with the breeders, but the quality of mares was the best he has ever had," said Robert Hammond, WinStar's Director of Bloodstock & Stallion Seasons.

ELEVEN EYEING MALIBU

A field of 11 sophomores has been drawn for the final Grade I of 2010, Sunday's $250,000 Malibu S. at Santa Anita. The worthy highweight is Smiling Tiger

Smiling Tiger

(Hold That Tiger), who defeated his elders in both the GI Bing Crosby S. at Del Mar Aug. 1 and GI Ancient Title at Hollywood Oct. 9. In his first attempt on conventional dirt, the chestnut finished an honorable third in the GI Breeders' Cup Sprint at Churchill Nov. 6. He will attempt to carry his speed an additional furlong here, and will need to overcome the interrupted preparation brought upon by recent heavy rainfall in Southern California. "I don't see the distance as a problem," trainer Jeff Bonde told Daily Racing Form. "I just don't like the fact that we haven't been able to train the way we wanted. But pretty much everybody else is in the same boat." Graded winners Caracortado (Cat Dreams), Twirling Candy (Candy Ride {Arg}) and Noble's Promise (Cuvee) are also entered, as is ☆ "TDN Rising Star" ☆ Alcindor (Unbridled's Song), who is perfect in two starts.

Despite those recent defeats, Champagne d'Oro's connections think she is capable of bouncing back. "She is such a nice filly and is only three, but we have such high hopes for her next year," said Southern Equine's Michael Moreno. And while the filly

O'BRIEN FINED, WARNED ABOUT CONDUCT

Trainer Aidan O'Brien was yesterday fined a total £10,400 by the British Horseracing Authority (BHA) following the trainer's refusal to obey stewards' instructions in the wake of the G2 Dante S. success of Cape Blanco (Ire) (Galileo {Ire}) at York May 13. O'Brien admitted to "acting in a manner prejudicial to the conduct of horseracing in Great Britain" at a BHA disciplinary hearing last month, as well as two other charges in relation to encouraging travelling groom Pat Keating to refuse to comply with instructions given by York's stewards. Cape Blanco was found to be lame by racecourse vets following the York success, but O'Brien refused to allow the subsequent G1 Irish Derby and G1 Irish Champion S. victor to be trotted before the vets a second time for fear of aggravating the injury further.

Aidan O'Brien
Horsephotos

The BHA Published its findings yesterday and issued a statement that read, "The Panel has considered very carefully whether the proper approach on this occasion would be to deal with the issue by imposing a period of time during which horses entered in races in Great Britain by Aidan O'Brien were not allowed to race. The Panel has determined on this occasion that it is proportionate in all the circumstances to deal with the matter by way of a financial penalty, and have determined that a fine of £9,000 is appropriate in all the circumstances. The Panel recognises that this is a significant sum, and considers it properly reflects the disregard demonstrated by Aidan O'Brien for the concern of the vets and the proper conduct of horseracing in Great Britain. The Panel wishes to note that if Aidan O'Brien were to breach the Rules in similar circumstances again, this Panel would have no hesitation in acting to restrict the ability of Aidan O'Brien's horses to run in Great Britain."

GROOMED FOR SUCCESS

On a Saturday last July, Leslie Janecka, coordinator of the Kentucky Equine Management Internship Program, was preparing to show the incoming Fall Class of 2010 around Old Friends Farm in Georgetown when a large shipping truck drove up. Boxes began piling out. They were full of trophies belonging to the late Hall of Fame trainer Bobby Frankel, who had donated them to Old Friends. The young men and women crowded around to see. The first extracted trophy was one earned by Frankel's triple Grade I winner

Leslie Janecka

Marquetry, a new addition to Old Friends after being pensioned from stud duties. "We brought the trophy over to Marquetry and let him take a look at it," laughed Janecka. "The kids loved it."

It was a serendipitous moment, as Janecka was introducing much the class to the unique world of Thoroughbreds. In a span of 15 minutes, they saw some of the best the industry has to offer, from the excitement stirred by a champion runner to the compassion of an old warrior being allowed to live out his days peacefully.

The Kentucky Equine Management Internship Program, or KEMI, was launched in January of 2000. Its goal was simple: to attract young, qualified people with equine backgrounds to the Thoroughbred industry. The idea came from a group within the Kentucky Farm Managers Club, who wondered, "Where have all the workers gone?"

"They were wondering why people weren't attracted to the Thoroughbred industry--and that's still the question today," said Janecka. "Nobody's made it understandable to them or exciting to them, because there's so many other things out there. So we go out and tell people."

The program works like this: interns come to Lexington for a six-month semester. They pay tuition (currently a modest $2,000), but are given free board at various farms around the Bluegrass, where they work alongside the farm's staff. They also receive an hourly wage, and by semester's end can often earn up to $7,500, easily offsetting the cost of the tuition. Classes typically number 25, winnowed down from a pool of roughly 75 applicants.

"We also have weekly meetings and have speakers from every facet of the industry," said Janecka. "We talk to them about veterinary work, farm management, training--we want them to get a broad picture."

Host farms have included Adena Springs, Ashford Stud, Claiborne Farm, Darby Dan, Darley, Gainesway, Juddmonte Farms, Lane's End, Mill Ridge Farm, Overbrook Farm, Pin Oak Stud, Shadwell Farm, Three Chimneys, and WinStar.

Janecka, KEMI's lone paid employee, spends about half the year on the road, visiting colleges, universities and horse clubs putting the word out about KEMI and the Thoroughbred world at large. Incoming students must have previous horse experience, be it on a ranch in Montana or showing horses in Maryland, and Janecka prefers they have a two-year, equine-related degree. "We want them to be able to come right on to the farms and know how to take temperatures and things like that," said Janecka.

Janecka said much of her initial work involves setting students straight. "There are a lot of misconceptions about Thoroughbreds, about how we treat our horses," said Janecka. "And you go to some of these places, and they think the Kentucky Derby is the only race in America. They have no idea there's so much more out there. They love horses and want a job working with horses, but they don't know much about the industry."

She added, "Of course their biggest eye-opening here is the value of the horses. Their eyes are like saucers--'Horse live like this?' And they learn the negative stereotypes about the horses aren't true. People do love their horses and take care of them."

About 450 students have now graduated from KEMI, and about half have stayed in Lexington to work. "A good portion of the students get jobs offers when their semester is up," said Janecka.

The most recent class--the ones that visited with Marquetry over the summer--graduated two weeks ago, and despite the current downturn in the industry, eight already have jobs lined up.

Adolfo Martinez, broodmare manager at Darby Dan; Randy Gilbert, farm manager of Dell Ridge; Beth McAlister, a financial administrator at Three Chimneys; and Michaela Mathis, a bloodstock administrator at Darley.

"We've had students go on to be farm managers, assistant farm managers, trainers," said Janecka. "I think we probably have 20 or 25 people in vet school right now."

Graduates include Tim Walsh, who went on to train Grade III winner Gunning For, as well as

"The KEMI program is a wonderful opportunity to gain exposure and knowledge of the Thoroughbred industry," said Mathis. "It served as a great stepping stone to get me from college into a career with horses that I love and enjoy."

Brianne Stanley, who works alongside the TDN's Bill Oppenheim, is another KEMI grad. "The KEMI program was a great introduction to the Thoroughbred industry for me," said Stanley. "I found out about the global horse world of breeding and racing. After enjoying my time on the KEMI course, I finished college and moved to Kentucky to pursue a career in the industry, which was best move I've ever made!"

If you haven't heard of KEMI, that's not entirely by accident. "Most people don't know about us," admitted Janecka. "There have been other people who have tried to do this, and it didn't work out, so we wanted to start small. We wanted to make sure it was doing what it was supposed to be doing."

The seed money from KEMI came from various farms and individuals, including Khalid Abdullah's Juddmonte Farm, the Niarchos family's Flaxman Holdings, Josephine Abercrombie's Abercrombie Foundation, and W.T. Young's Overbrook Farm. In addition to tuition, KEMI is sustained through donations, including the Farm Managers' annual golf scramble. Like many educational endeavors, KEMI has had to work hard to ensure adequate funding in recent years.

"It's hard to go and ask someone for money when they're having such a hard time themselves," said Janecka. "What we'd love to do is start an endowment program, so that we could operate off the interest that's generated. We actually have one prominent horse person who'd like to donate, but he wants to see it as a group effort. He'd like to see three or four other people step in and provide the funding. Then we wouldn't have to go out and ask for money each year."

KEMI's Board of Directors is comprised of unpaid volunteers. They include Juddmonte Farms manager Garrett O'Rourke, president of the board; Lane's End broodmare manager Callan Strouss, vice president; Three Chimneys Farm's stallion manager Sandy Hatfield, secretary; Juddmonte's financial controller Jackie Smith, treasurer; and Laurie Lawrence, Ph.D., educational chair.

Small though it's been, KEMI has already done much to draw in qualified new workers, who ultimately will help determine the industry's future. "We've been to every state except Hawaii and Alaska, and we've gotten students from every state except Hawaii and West Virginia," said Janecka. "If you love horses and you want to work with horses, there's probably no better place to be than here."

Juddmonte's Garrett O'Rourke said the future success of the business is contingent on the foundations laid by outfits like KEMI. "In a time when we are weak in our industry in finding ways to cast a net over future Thoroughbred industry participants, KEMI has quietly and very effectively recruited third-level equine students to Kentucky and immersed them in the industry," said O'Rourke. "The results show a tremendous retention rate in the industry, as many stay in the Thoroughbred business--throughout the U.S. and beyond--in breeding, racing, as veterinarians, vet techs, pedigree researchers, equine CPA's etc. The youthful enthusiasm that these students exhibit will be an essential ingredient to the reinvigoration of our sport. An educated young person with a proven love for the sport is the future of the industry." -L Marquardt

MID SHARES SURGE ON STRONACH NEWS

Confirming news which on Tuesday halted the trading of the shares of real estate company MI Developments, Frank Stronach is giving up control of MID in exchange for the racetrack and gambling assets currently owned by the company. On the news, shares of MID jumped by $8.54, or 44 percent on the New York Stock Exchange, while the stock closed at C$28 on the Toronto Stock Exchange, a gain of C$8.68 (about 45 percent). MID said Wednesday that it had received a proposal that would see Stronach cancelling his voting shares, which give him control of the company. MID currently owns Santa Anita Park and Golden Gate Fields, and has interests in Maryland's Pimlico Racecourse, Laurel Park and the Bowie Training Center, as well as Gulfstream Park near Miami. Upon the completion of the reorganization, MID would retain its income-producing real estate property business and would be restricted from "engaging in or having an interest in, directly or indirectly, any business related to horse racing or gaming." Stronach and the so-called "Initiating" Shareholders have agreed to vote in favor of the reorganization. If the transfer of assets takes place, the transfer would be effective as of Jan. 1, 2011.

NY GETS OK TO VIDEO-STREAM RACES LIVE

New York racetracks and regional Off-Track Betting corporations have been given the green light to video-stream races live on the Internet for one year, according to published reports. Since the Dec. 7 closing of New York City OTB, the New York Racing Association has signed up more than 1,200 new customers to its wagering rewards program, according to Daily Racing Form. "We're very pleased that the major financial stake holders in New York racing have come together and acted in their common best interests," New York State Racing and Wagering Board Chairman John Sabini told DRF through a spokesperson. Aqueduct re-opens for live racing following the Christmas break Dec. 29.

OBITUARIES

Broadcaster Pete Kules Dies

Award-winning broadcaster Pete Kules, who co-founded the Horse Racing Radio Network, died Dec. 19 at Central Baptist Hospital in Lexington. He was 76. During a six-decade career in television and radio broadcasting, Kules covered major sports at every level. He most recently hosted the racing talk show Equine Forum with HRRN President Mike Penna. Kules first got involved with horse racing as a hotwalker at the Massachusetts fairs in 1943. Following stints as a groom, veterinarian assistant and assistant starter, he graduated to track announcer, track handicapper and host of seminars at such racetracks as Churchill Downs, Saratoga, Thistledown and Finger Lakes. "The horse racing world has lost a great ambassador," said Penna. "Pete was a great friend who gave me my start in radio. He loved the sport of Thoroughbred racing and will be missed by all of us at HRRN."

PRADO, ESPINOZA TIE IN PERUVIAN CONTEST

U.S.-based jockeys Edgar Prado and Victor Espinoza tied with 18 points each at the end of the Campeonato Internacional de Jockeys 2010--Robalca, an International Jockeys' Championship at Monterrico Racecourse in Peru Tuesday. Prado and Espinoza shared the $15,000 total prize money equally as a result. Jockeys were awarded 10 points for a win, four points for second, three points for third, two points for fourth and a scratch was worth two points. Eclipse Award winner Prado appeared to have the title nearly secured after placing second twice with his first two mounts and earning the victory aboard Torrentica (Per) (Quintillon) in the penultimate race of the championship. However, Espinoza, who got off to a flying start by guiding 17-to-1 longshot Anoki (Per) (Chiquetete {Per}) in the opening race of the championship, then placed fourth with his two subsequent mounts and finished second aboard Princesa Apache (Per) (Privately Held) in the finale to join Prado for the title. Rafael Bejarano and Alan Garcia finished deadlocked for third after winning a race each, representing a sweep of the top four spots for the U.S.-based riders. "I've won many races during my career, but winning this title in Peru is very special," said the Peruvian-born Prado, who autographed and signed copies of the Spanish release of his book "My Guy Barbaro" in between races. Added Espinoza, "I am very happy and is a great satisfaction." East Cost-based jockey Jose Valdivia Jr. finished ninth overall with two points. Fellow East-Coast rider Cornelio Velasquez failed to muster any points.
