TEN FELIPE

Trainer Bob Baffert will tighten the girth on a pair of colts in Saturday's GII San Felipe S. at Santa Anita, but Fed Biz (Giant's Causeway) will skip the race after a minor setback. "It's nothing serious," said Baffert. "He tied up a little."

The Hall of Famer will be represented by GI CashCall Futurity hero Liaison (Indian Charlie) and Bodemeister (Empire Maker), who turned in a "TDN Rising Star" ⚡ performance in a local maiden Feb. 11. "I'm sort of surprised by what he did, but this is the time of year that we want horses to surprise us," Baffert offered. "We were a little late getting him going, but I'll tell you one thing: I've never seen a slow, fit, seasoned 3-year-old win the Derby. You still have to have that talent." GUINEAS ENTRIES ANNOUNCED

Entries for Britain's first two Classics of the year, the May 5 G1 2000 Guineas and the May 6 G1 1000 Guineas, were announced yesterday. Both QIPCO-sponsored races have a prize fund of £350,000 with 63 possibles engaged in the former and 70 entrants in the latter. There are 21 overseas nominees for the 2000 Guineas and 26 in the 1000 Guineas. There is the usual raft of Irish entries--16 in the 2000 and 17 in the 1000--as well as a selection from France and Spain.

Trainer Nicolas Clement has already committed leading French hope French Fifteen (Fr) (Turtle Bowl {Ire}), winner of last term's G1 Criterium International, and was on hand Tuesday to oversee his stable star's latest workout. "French Fifteen has done well during the winter and had his first work on the Polytrack at Chantilly," said Clement. "He went solo and I was very pleased. The plan now is to run him in the [Apr. 5 G3] Prix Djebel [at Maisons-Laffitte] and he is a colt who needs a true early pace to show his best. He has a good turn of foot and could be ridden by Olivier Peslier--if he isn't claimed by the Wertheimer brothers--as he now has a second retainer with [owner] Sheikh [Abdullah bin Khalifa] Al Thani." Cont. p6

Sounding Off

In yesterday's TDN, Bill Oppenheim asked readers to voice their opinion on the race-day medication ban in 2-year-old graded stakes. We heard from them in droves, with one side winning our Super Wednesday straw poll in a landslide.

Shez Sinsational, who ended 2011 with a win in the G1 Zabeel Classic, added the G1 International S. Feb. 11, and was coming off a third-place effort in a Mar. 3 Auckland handicap. The race was delayed for eight minutes when the favored filly had to be retacked after James McDonald's saddle broke. Spiro was first to burst from a large pack of horses, but Shez Sinsational closed powerfully to just catch that foe on the line. "I wasn't happy with how she was going, but I knew once she gets clear air, she really lets down," McDonald told AAP Racing. Trainer Allan Sharrock said the G1 Melbourne Cup could be in the cards for Shez Sinsational. "That's part of our thinking," Sharrock said. "But I've even thrown a nom in for the Singapore Cup. We'll take her home first and have a look at her."

Mauricio Delcher Sanchez's Matusalen (Spa) (Caradak {Ire}) is the the sole Spanish-trained entry in the colts' Classic, and he also has Irish Cliff (Ire) (Marju {Ire}) engaged in the fillies' equivalent. The latter contest also includes eight French contenders.

"We are delighted with the undoubted calibre and international nature of the respective entries for the QIPCO 2000 and 1000 Guineas," commented Newmarket's Director of Racing Michael Prosser. "The two prestigious races not only invariably produce top-class winners, but also possess great depth in terms of quality. They always set up the forthcoming season and set an exceptional standard in their own right."

Triple Threats

Reckless Jerry Has Rebel Target

Oaklawn-based Reckless Jerry (Cactus Ridge) emerged from his six-furlong drill Sunday in good order and will proceed to the $500,000 GII Rebel S. Mar. 17. Second by a neck in the Smarty Jones S. Jan. 16 and third behind Castaway (Street Sense) in the first division of the GIII Southwest S. Feb. 20, Reckless Jerry stopped the clock in 1:13 2/5 during his most recent workout. "I've stepped up his training a little bit knowing how tough the next few races are going to be," said trainer Kenny Smith. "This is where we start to see who belongs in that group. Cream rises to the top in races like the Derby." Jockey Joe Rocco Jr. will take over the 3-year-old's reins in the Rebel, replacing Shane Laviolette. "We have kind of babied this horse a little bit trying to keep him as fresh as possible for these races," said Smith. "He seems to be responding to the step up in training, and I'm looking for a big race from him." Reckless Jerry is campaigned by Dream Walkin Farms and Lanita Davis.

All horses in the TDN are bred in North America, unless otherwise indicated

Letters TO THE EDITOR

Editor's note: Bill Oppenheim's suggestion in his column in Wednesday's TDN (click here to read) prompted TDN readers to send emails to racing commissions, TOBA and racetrack executives, expressing their opinion on a race-day medication ban in 2-year-old graded stakes. For the record--through 5 p.m. Wednesday night--there were 44 letters; 42 favored a medication ban, while two did not. Still others wrote to the TDN to discuss their thoughts. A sampling of the letters, reprinted with the permission of the authors, appears below.

I would like to voice my strong support of the efforts made by TOBA in changing the regulation of race-day medication with the move towards a zero drug policy. Having worked on the racetrack in North America, England, Hong Kong and Australia, it is clear that the North American racing industry has been out of step with other international policies, much to the detriment of the sport here. Major overseas clients of ours will simply not invest in either racing horses in North America, on the basis that they believe raceday medications are the tip of the iceberg in terms of performance enhancement, or invest in breeding stock from North America on the basis that the drugs that they are using are masking deleterious heritable traits. None of the racing jurisdictions mentioned above restrict the use of medication in preparing a horse to race. I have worked with plenty of trainers who train horses on bute and lasix in order to help the horse along, but they do not turn up on race day with the medication in the horses system and thus they compete on a relatively level playing field.

Ultimately, the racehorse is selected to compete in the environment created by racing jurisdiction with the regulations, rules and racing distances that it determines. Just as the reduction of top class dirt races from 2 miles, to a mile and a half to now a mile and a quarter (save the Belmont) has resulted the prototypical North American Thoroughbred be effective from 6f to a mile and a sixteenth, resulting in what are essentially sprinters competing in the Kentucky Derby each year, the use of race day medication has and will continue to result in horses that won't be able to compete on an international stage, and indeed within their own racing jurisdiction, without the use of race day medication. From a genetic and pedigree viewpoint, this ultimately results in a downward selection spiral towards a classless horse that nobody will want to invest either time and money in.

I have been a Thoroughbred racing fan for 53 years and a small Thoroughbred horse breeder for 20. This sport has been a lifelong passion for me, but to see what has happened to the U.S. racing and breeding industry in the last 25 years is deeply disturbing. We over-medicate our horses and have extended race meetings in which the sport has been degraded in the eyes of the American public. Hardly anyone I associate with has even a passing interest in Thoroughbred racing. Is there no wonder that the news media have consequently ignored Thoroughbred racing in their sports coverage? A ban on race-day medications would be a step in restoring the integrity of this sport. If human sports take a hard line against drug use on human athletes who presumably have a choice, how can the Thoroughbred industry continue to drug our noble animals who are defenseless?

Sincerely,
Joseph Di Rienzi
Professor of Physics, Notre Dame of Maryland University
Baltimore, MD

My name is Dermot Cantillon. I own farms in Kentucky (Lemons Mill Farm) and Ireland (Tinnakill House), so I take a very keen interest in the topic being debated.

I would like to make the following points:

- Talk to the shippers from Ireland and the UK about the number of foals, mares and yearlings being shipped back to Ireland and the UK is only a fraction of what it was five years ago. There is now a perceived view that American horses are inherently unsound.
- The number of American-bred 2-year-olds to be presented at this year's European sales is significantly down.
- At my Irish operation, I have for various reasons a number of mares with American pedigrees and over the last number of years I have seen a definite bias against buying good stock from these mares. There is now an ever diminishing respect for the U.S.A. suffix in Europe.
- Many of the major players who purchase yearlings internationally are now spending more proportionally in Europe.

For me, the two biggest problems facing the American Thoroughbred industry are isolationism and federalism, and this issue highlights what is a much bigger problem.

The industry in America lacks leaders. There seem to be a lot of "big names," but very few leaders and never was this more evident than in the response to this issue. What is needed are people with vested interests (we all have) to take the long-term view for the integrity and future of the American Thoroughbred industry. Where is the next Mr. Gaines?

Bill,

I read your piece today with the response by TOBA.

TOBA doesn't need anybody's permission to withhold graded status. They misspoke; their lame excuse for not admitting they don't have the fortitude, the fearlessness the moxie to buck the track and horsemen groups.

It takes courage to effect change like this. It means getting your hands dirty, making a commitment, not being afraid of confrontation. TOBA does not self-identify as an agent of change despite the overwhelming call for such by most owners in the sport and by their own membership.

As an owner/breeder/trainer from Paris, Kentucky, I can assure you that no amount of letters will change the position of the HBPA, who is the key player in this dispute. Unfortunately, the "needle in the neck" devotees have underestimated the degree of organized resistance to their continued practices.

It is naive to think that these groups are open to changing their minds, which Dr. Richardson expects (hopes?) to see happen in the future.

The subject at hand will be decided by raw, take-no-prisoners commitment.

Why such drastic measures?

Because we have the moral high ground and will not surrender it to those who don't care about the horse, who don't care about our sport's future, but instead place their own narrow self-interest before all else.

We are very close to reaching that magical "tipping point," and hope your efforts will produce our expected outcome. I appreciate your efforts to aid our cause.

Kind regards,
Stanley Inman

Having just read Bill Oppenheim's suggestion that we all write the Graded Stakes Committee, state racing officials, and racetracks, I had to laugh. It reminded me of Dick Clark telling us to write letters as to who the best dancers were on American Bandstand, or nowadays voting for Dancing with the Stars.

The Graded Stakes Committee is the judge, jury, and executioner, so to speak, when it comes to making the calls if a race is going to be a G1, G2, G3, or not Graded at all. Just as they did in 2009 when Gone Astray won the Pennsylvania Derby and was stripped of G2 status for a failure to TCO2 test the horses.

Correct me if I'm wrong, but I believe this could be accomplished by the Graded Stakes Committee simply stating that if a 2-year-old is listed in the program as running on salix, it would not receive a graded status if it finishes 1st, 2nd, or 3rd in the race. Owners would still have the option to use the drug.

We all know that 2-year-old horses, trainers, and owners that run in graded races are high-end, and it's about the value of the horse down the road. As Mr. Oppenheim pointed out, it's such a small number of races, and the owners would run drug-free not to jeopardize the value of their stock.

Leadership is needed here, not letters.
Sincerely,
William Koester

I have been a regular visitor to and purchaser at Thoroughbred auction sales in your country since 1972. I have purchased or caused to be purchased hundreds of Thoroughbreds for millions of dollars, the majority of which have been exported from the U.S. to race and/or breed in Europe.

I was for a long time a leading advocate of the advantages of buying horses in America, citing the natural upbringing, toughness and soundness of the breed. Fourteen of my lifetime 20 Grade I winners purchased as yearlings were sourced in U.S.

I am now experiencing serious doubts as to the validity and credibility of American black-type, and I am encountering increasing resistance, amounting in some cases to virtual hostility, to the idea of buying in America.

Not only do I believe you need to address the medication issue as a matter of urgency, I also believe you need to rein in your veterinary practitioners many of whom seem to have lost sight of their ethical responsibility to the horse.

NTRA SAFETY & INTEGRITY ALLIANCE REPORT

PUBLIC COMMENT INVITED ON 2012 ALLIANCE CODE OF STANDARDS

The public comment period for the 2012 NTRA Safety & Integrity Alliance Code of Standards will begin next Monday, March 12.

The Alliance enables every industry stakeholder to participate in a consensus-driven, national program to create, implement and enforce a Code of Standards for Thoroughbred racing. All stakeholder groups, including racetracks, horsemen, breeders, owners, trainers, jockeys, veterinarians, regulators and racing fans, have input into the Code.

The Code mandates minimum standards in six areas: injury reporting and prevention; safety equipment and a safer racing environment; medication and testing; health and safety of jockeys; aftercare of equine athletes; and wagering security.

The Code incorporates new or more stringent standards every year, continuously raising the bar. In 2011, for example, the Code was expanded to include more stringent requirements for wagering security, injury reporting, post-mortem veterinary inspections, jockey health and safety, paddock safety, aftercare/transitioning of retired racehorses and cross-jurisdictional sharing of vet's list data.

Visit www.NTRAalliance.com to read the proposed Code and submit suggestions to alliance@ntra.com.

For more information contact Mike Ziegler, executive director of NTRA Safety & Integrity Alliance, (859) 422-2668 or visit www.NTRAalliance.com.

(NJ) Senate Panel OKs Online Gaming Bill

A state Senate committee advanced a bill Monday that would allow online casino gambling, despite opposition from the horse racing industry that included the threat of legal action. Gov. Chris Christie vetoed online casino legislation that reached his desk last year, citing several concerns, including a component that would dedicate some of the new revenue to horse racing purse subsidies. Christie said the benefits should go to the Atlantic City casinos.

WELCOME GUEST (f, 3, Unbridled's Song--My Friend C. Javier Castellano had the ride that afternoon, but opted here for Silverette

Adam Coglianese

(Street Sense), also runner-up on her debut Jan. 15 and favored at 1-2. Welcome Guest, the 3-2 second choice, pressed the pace outside of the chalk, who got her opening half in a comfortable :46.01. The two matched strides to the eighth pole, but Welcome Guest asserted soon after and went on to score by 5 1/2 lengths. The late Gordon Stollery acquired the winner's dam, herself a daughter of GISW Glitter Woman (Glitterman), for $700,000 at Keeneland January in 2006. Near or at the tail--but close up--for the opening half-mile, the New York-bred came around a tiring rival on the turn before dropping back down onto the fence. Stretched to two turns going a mile over this surface Dec. 31, the Penna-bred sprang a 41-1 upset, but beat just two home when a distant sixth in a course-and-distance allowance Feb. 3. Despite that subpar effort, he was bet a little from 20-1 into 12-1 and surprised another bunch. Third into the clubhouse turn, Romancing the Gold advanced up into second leaving the half-mile marker.
