ELI-TE COMPANY

by Steve Sherack

After Tammy the Torpedo (More Than Ready) blitzed home to a jaw-dropping debut win over the grass at Saratoga last summer, trainer Chad Brown turned to co-owner Jay Hanley, pulled on his shirt and said, "The one we have in the barn is a lot better."

Talk about calling your shot.

With a perfect five-for-five record and just a shade under seven figures in earnings--including a sensational victory in last term's GI Breeders' Cup Juvenile Fillies Turf at Santa Anita--Lady Eli (Divine Park) heads into Saturday's GI Belmont Oaks Invitational as the one to beat while negotiating 1 1/4 miles for the first time against 13 rivals.

"It has been equally humbling and extraordinary," said Hanley, who, along with Sol Kumin and a pair of silent partners, operate as Sheep Pond Partners.

Hanley continued, "I've spoken to guys in the game in their 60s saying that they've never seen a filly with a turn of foot like this in their lives. It's hard for me to even put that into perspective, frankly. It's really been amazing." Cont. p3

DUPUIS FINDS SUCCESS

by Christie DeBernardis

Francoise Dupuis, a bloodstock agent and California breeder, has enjoyed a lot of success throughout her career in horse racing, but she achieved her biggest success as a breeder last Saturday when she watched Masochistic (Sought After) win the GI Triple Bend S.

"It is something I have never experienced before and I have to assume will never happen again," Dupuis said of seeing a horse she bred win a Grade I. "The beauty of this is, it's an example that the little guy can make it because I am a little, little, mini-breeder. That is the beauty of the game. You still have a chance. It may be a longshot, but you still have a chance!"

Francoise Dupuis

Masochistic's performance even caught the eye of Hall of Famer Bob Baffert, who pulled Dupuis aside after the race.

"It's a funny story actually," Dupuis remarked. "I saw Bob Baffert Saturday and he said, 'You got a good horse. Why didn't you send it to me?' I said, 'Who cares? You have the Triple Crown winner!' We laughed and I said, 'You don't want a Cal-bred. That's not you,' and we laughed some more." Cont. p5

TIME FOR CHANGE IS NOW

Over the course of the past 40 years, I have seen the sport of Thoroughbred racing encounter significant challenges and I've witnessed them from a couple of different perspectives. As a deputy attorney general in New Jersey in 1975-77, I supervised the Tony Ciulla race-fixing case. (For those of you too young to remember, Ciulla admitted to fixing races at a host of tracks, primarily in New England, New York and the Mid-Atlantic region, between 1972 and 1975. Ciulla became a state's witness and eventually was resettled in the federal witness relocation program.) Later, I served as counsel and executive director for the New Jersey Racing Commission, followed by 20 years as a racetrack executive at Monmouth Park, The Meadowlands, Philadelphia Park, Aqueduct, Belmont Park, and Saratoga, with stints as president of the Thoroughbred Racing Association and chairman of the Thoroughbred Racing Protective Bureau along the way. Cont. p6

Hanley--the principal of the Nantucket, Massachusetts-based Hanley Construction & Development--met Kumin, the former chief operating officer of SAC Capital Advisors LP, when Kumin was looking to make some renovations to his house. The location of Kumin's piece of property? Sheep Pond Road.

"We met about nine or 10 years ago or so," Hanley, 43, explained. "He was a new home owner in Nantucket at the time and needed some renovations done. A friend of a friend hooked us up and our relationship grew from there. Eventually, I owned one horse by myself--he would always ask questions about her--and he ultimately cornered me at a cocktail party with a couple of his buddies. My horse [Wild Grace] had just won at Saratoga [in August 2013] and I was telling them all about it and how great it was and it all just started from there."

Sheep Pond Partners currently owns approximately 25 horses, the majority in partnership, since launching in 2014. One race before American Pharoah (Pioneer of the Nile) completed his historic Triple Crown sweep in the GI Belmont S., Sheep Pond, along with partners Michael Dubb and Bethlehem Stables LLC, were celebrating a 14-1 upset win courtesy Slumber (GB) (Cacique {Ire}) in the GI Manhattan S. The 7-year-old was acquired for $200,000 as a horse of racing age at last year's KEENOV sale.

Kumin, along with NFL star wide receiver and Breeders' Cup Ambassador Wes Welker, also campaigns Undrafted (Purim), winner of last month's G1 Diamond Jubilee S. at Royal Ascot. The 40-year-old launched Folger Hill Asset Management, a hedge fund backed by $1.2 billion in capital, earlier this year. It currently boasts 55 employees.

"It's been incredible--three Grade 1s in seven months," said Kumin, who splits his time between Boston and New York. "Everyone just keeps saying to me, 'You have no idea how lucky you are. This doesn't happen. It's not like this.' I honestly feel really lucky. Jay and I have been buddies for a long time and Chad has taken us under his wing and it's been awesome. We're all basically in the same age bracket, too, and it's been a lot of fun. We've surrounded ourselves with good people that we trust and we've been really lucky."

While trips to Saratoga--Hanley's late mother was from nearby Fort Edward--had him hooked since childhood, Kumin's path to racing went through Charm City during his college days.

"I had always loved to gamble," Kumin commented. "When I went to Johns Hopkins in Baltimore, I played lacrosse there, and if we ended up in the top four in the country, we'd get to go to the Preakness on our bye weekend. While all my friends were in the infield, I was trying to study the book and do some handicapping. I always had a soft spot for racing, but didn't really have time for it once I graduated college and moved to New York and started working 100-hour weeks. The last couple of years, though, we bought a couple of horses, and all of a sudden, I just saw myself getting hooked."

For Kumin, a father of three, racing has quickly become a family affair.

“Now, it’s become a big part of my life,” he explained, admitting that Lady Eli’s success has been the main reason. “My wife loves it--Lady Eli is named after her. I have three little kids and take them to the track all the time. We go to the barns and they feed the horses peppermints. They just love it. They’ve helped name them and keep all the horses’s pictures in their rooms, too.”

He concluded, “I love the [making the] deal part of it. I love the animal. I love the game. I love the gambling. I love the whole thing.”

After obtaining degrees from Bucknell University and Harvard University, Hanley spent about six years as a fixed income analyst in San Francisco and New York. He later switched gears and launched his construction company in 2002. Like Kumin, Hanley, a married father of a three-month-old son, shares a similar enthusiasm and passion for racing.

“I used to trail after my grandfather as a kid and he taught me everything there is to know about the horses--the tote board, the backstretch, the gambling/handicapping aspect, etc,” he said. “I absorbed everything from him. He was my biggest influence. My mother and father were big racing fans as well.”

Hanley continued, “I don’t think I ever really dreamed that I’d be a horse owner, but when I got to a point in my business career where I had enough money to contemplate it, my mother was diagnosed with pancreatic cancer and I figured that I might as well buy a horse then while she could enjoy it. She named the first horse that I bought, but I really did it for my father, so he could have something to do [while the family was grieving]. It was my family that got me into racing, and once I was bitten, the combination of these majestic, beautiful animals, and all the underlying math and complexity that is horse racing, just got me at a young age.”

Now, back to the aforementioned, “one in the barn.” Lady Eli, bred in Kentucky by Runnymede Farm Inc. and Catesby W. Clay, passed through the sales ring twice. Bradley Thoroughbreds purchased Lady Eli for $160,000 as a KEESEP yearling before pinhooking the dark bay for the same amount through the Eddie Woods consignment at the 2014 KEEAPR sale.

An Eclipse Award finalist after going three-for-three at two, the half-sister to multiple graded winner Bizzy Caroline (Afleet Alex) picked up right where she left off with a facile win in Keeneland’s GIII Appalachian S. Apr. 12, then successfully stretched to nine furlongs in impressive fashion while overcoming a traffic-filled voyage in Belmont’s Wonder Again S. May 31. Her winning dam Sacre Coeur (Saint Ballado) produced a filly by Blame in 2013 and a colt by Ghostzapper in 2014.

“She hasn’t done anything to deter us or dissuade us from believing that she can handle the added distance,” Hanley said. “But she still has to go do it. As good as she’s been, there still is that question mark. But she’s training essentially the same way that she has her whole life and she’s getting stronger, which bodes well for her getting the distance.”

Hanley concluded, “We have 40 people coming down to Belmont this weekend. We have a big crew and we fully understand that she’s driving this all.”

For the Sheep Pond Partners, the ride continues at 5:46 p.m. Saturday.

Dupuis bred Masochistic along with longtime friend Louise Julian. The pair originally planned to keep and race the bay, who was initially trained by Dupuis's husband Jean-Pierre DuPuis. When Julian decided she wanted out and their home base at San Luis Rey closed, Dupuis was forced to sell Masochistic.

"After my partner backed out and the training center closed, I sold the horse privately to [trainer] A.C. Avila and he brought in a partner [Los Pollos Hermanos Racing]," Dupuis said. "After the horse won his first race this year, Avila sold his half to Samantha Siegel [of Jay Em Ess Stable] and that is why the horse has been with [trainer] Ron Ellis. So far, he has two starts and two wins [for Ellis], the GII Kona Gold S. and now a Grade I, so that is fantastic."

Masochistic did not make his first start until March of his 4-year-old season and Dupuis believes his recent success is due to the extra time he was given to develop.

"The key about Masochistic is he was a very late developer, as was the rest of his family," the French native commented. "If we didn't have him, he probably would never have made it because we had to stop twice on him because his skeleton was just not ready yet. He showed so much ability, but we had to stop on him twice. That's why we gelded him because when you stop on colts they get stupid, so we gelded him. We were very patient with him and I am very happy it paid off."

Masochistic's sire and first three dams were all unraced and Dupuis has ties to all of them, as well as the fourth dam Truffles.

"It's amazing because I used to gallop Truffles, his fourth dam," she enthused. "I also used to gallop [his third dam] Treasure Isle and bred and galloped [his second dam] Noblesse Oblige, but not his dam Trotinette because I had retired from galloping by then. I also bought the sire's dam Smolensk and bought the sire for a client. I have two free breedings to him a year, but haven't used any recently because he is based on Northern California and I only have one broodmare."

It was Truffles, or really her daughter Treasure Isle, that got Dupuis started in breeding.

"[Truffles owner] Mr. Julian gave me Treasure Isle because she was the first foal out of Truffles," Dupuis said. "I used to gallop [Treasure Isle's sire] Erins Isle (Ire) for Charlie Whittingham and I used to gallop Truffles. Mr. Julian died and his wife Louise said she couldn't afford to stay in horses after that, but I told her I would give her half of Treasure Isle and we can breed together and have fun. With my work [as a bloodstock agent], I got a free breeding to Falstaff and we had Noblesse Oblige and I had my free breeding to Sought After, so that is how it came up."

Dupuis currently only has one broodmare, Lucera (Ire) (Fasliyev), and one horse in training, Lucera's son Tribal Fighter (Tribal Rule).

"I have one broodmare and she is still unproven," the soon to be 60-year-old remarked. "She won $100,000 and I bought her in France. We sold her first foal and it later died of colic. The second foal was a filly I really liked and we had to put her down after a freak paddock accident. The second foal is a 2-year-old and is in training with Richard Baltas. If I didn't already own him, he is the type of horse I would buy. He has worked a few 3/8s. I cannot tell you yet if he is going to be good, but I like what I see so far!"

An equestrian in her youth, Dupuis got her start in horse racing as an exercise rider.

"I lived in France in Maisons-Laffitte and I was a law student, but I used to ride horses," Dupuis recalled. "I did a little bit of show jumping when I was young and then my friend said, 'Why don't you try to gallop racehorses because it's fun and different.' So, I did. I went to ride for a steeplechase trainer and met my husband, who taught me how to ride the Thoroughbreds and we are still married. He was a trainer in California and recently retired."

The couple soon moved to America and Dupuis started on the East Coast galloping for the legendary Frank Whiteley before moving to California, where she worked for Whittingham for a number of years.

"I got very lucky," Dupuis commented. "I worked for the best American trainer in Frank Whiteley, then I worked for Bill Cox and then I wanted to come to California because they have year-round racing and you don't have to travel as much." Cont. p6

Dupuis added, "I was supposed to go back to the university for law, but Billy Cox recommended me to Charlie Whittingham and I worked for him for several years. I was one of Charlie's Angels!"

Dupuis continued, "I got very lucky riding the best horses he had from around the world. I stopped working for him when he won the [GI] Jockey Club Gold Cup with Exceller [in 1978]. When my husband took out his trainer's license in '82, I went to gallop for him and it was a big change galloping his horses compared to Charlie Whittingham's horses because I was riding five Grade I winners in one set for Whittingham. It was pretty amazing!"

Masochistic | Benoit

It was just a couple of years after Dupuis started galloping for her husband that she got her start as a bloodstock agent. "The first horse I bought was for my husband," Dupuis said. "I bought Charming Duke (Fr) in 1985 and we won the [GI] Hollywood Derby with him in 1985."

Dupuis has had a hand in buying many champions since then in both Europe and America. Some of her top buys include 2001 champion older mare Gourmet Girl; Sovereign Award winner Musketier (Ger); MGISW and co-champion sprinter in the world Pico Central (Brz); Macoumba, dam of Malibu Moon; and GI Donn H. winner Albertus Maximus.

"I try to find what my clients ask me and it's not that easy," Dupuis commented. "I mostly buy in Europe because I have connections there. I bought a lot of horses for D. Wayne Lukas. I bought him Macoumba, Smolensk, who is the dam of Sought After, but lately I don't do much for him. He has his Kentucky team and they just want American horses."

Dupuis's most recent success story as a bloodstock agent is last month's GI Shoemaker Mile S. winner Talco (Fr) (Pivotal {GB}), who she bought in France for trainer John Sadler and Hronis Racing.

"I bought Talco last year for John Sadler," she said. "I was in France when he won the Shoemaker Mile. I go two or three times a year to see my family and look at horses. It was very good. I really liked the horse last year and John Sadler and his team have done a wonderful job to have him perform at the top."

Despite the many successes Dupuis has enjoyed as an exercise rider, breeder and bloodstock agent, she remains both humble and grateful.

"This is a very humbling business I have learned," Dupuis stated. "One day everything goes good and the next day it goes bad, but the little guy can have a chance in this business. We are losing owners every day, so I feel we need to encourage people to get into the business. Anybody has a chance!"

Today, as a racing industry consultant, I maintain an ongoing professional interest and a deep, abiding passion for the sport.

I was struck last week by the sincerity and conviction expressed in Bill Casner's Op/Ed essay appearing in the Thoroughbred Daily News, particularly his closing assertion that "federal intervention is probably the only way we have a chance at survival."

Of course, he was talking about drugs in our sport, not fixed races.

But he made a good point and I share his view. We, as an industry, are indeed at a crossroads and need to follow a new path on matters relating to equine medication.

We all want uniformity, but we disagree on the best route.

This industry faced a similar dilemma in the 1970s. When the Interstate Horseracing Act (IHA) was first proposed, passionate and heated debate ensued. Detractors saw it as a very risky and controversial legislative initiative and argued that the IHA would destroy the industry.

At the same time, proponents extolled its virtues and predicted it would not only save the industry, but ensure a healthy future for the sport. Undeniably, this was a watershed moment and it represented a risky paradigm shift. At the end of the day, the legislation passed.

The initiative created the distribution model for racing content and forced the industry to create a still-evolving pricing model (simulcast pricing) that led to an unprecedented period of pari-mutuel growth.

Our present situation with rules, testing and penalties is no less meaningful--and no less hotly debated--and I would suggest another paradigm shift is necessary. Despite the best efforts of state regulators, the goal of true national uniformity regarding medication remains illusory with only a smattering of states having fully embraced plenary uniform standards. Perhaps most tellingly, even major racing states such as California, Florida, Kentucky and New York have not yet implemented all phases of the National Uniform Medication Program.

State-by-state regulation, absent robust uniformity, simply can't work, and indeed, the frequently fine work done by the individual commissions in all other spheres of regulation is undermined by the broken mosaic of inconsistent testing and often inexplicable medication sanctions imposed.

Research and analysis in the past few years of various aspects of Thoroughbred racing, commissioned by The Jockey Club and conducted by McKinsey & Company and others, have repeatedly proved that we are facing daunting public perception problems. Even our best and most robust consumers--in other words, our biggest bettors--express grave concerns over integrity issues and the jumbled puzzle that is our fragmented state-by-state system of rules.

What can we do? What should we do?

I believe the time is ripe to embrace change and to make a paradigm shift in our medication practices. The challenge is no less compelling than the IHA challenge almost 40 years ago. We should support the efforts being made by the newly formed Coalition for Horse Racing Integrity to effect change through federal legislation by establishing an affiliation with widely respected, non-governmental entity in the field of drug testing and athletics: the U.S. Anti-Doping Agency (USADA).

USADA sets world-class standards for sports medication practices. It is a non-governmental, national, and, perhaps most importantly, independent entity. It runs the anti-doping program, including education, sample collection, results management, and drug reference resources for athletes in U.S. Olympic, Paralympic, Pan American, and Parapan American Sport, including all Olympic sport national governing bodies, their athletes, and events throughout the year.

USADA is well equipped to fix our patchwork system. An affiliation with USADA will help us restore, in immeasurable ways, public confidence in our sport. Bill Casner had it right when he spoke, pure, simple, and without ulterior motive.

A Congressional designation of USADA to effectuate needed change may represent our last and best chance to revive this magnificent sport.

I would urge all industry stakeholders to support this game-changing initiative.

The time to act is now.

If not now, then when?

EUROPE....for world-class horses and racing

“European imports have provided my owners and me with many great days. Stacelita, Samitar, Zagora, Alterite and most recently Slumber are all horses that have thrived in America and gone on to win at the highest level.”

Chad Brown

“There are many opportunities for imported horses to make their mark in America. European-breds have taken my owners to the winners circle on some of our biggest days.”

Bill Mott

“I am just elated. This is the biggest race I've won - I've won Breeders' Cups and races here in the past, but to come here and be presented with a Group One trophy by the Queen was such a fantastic experience”

Red Rifle, a front-running winner of last November's GII Hawthorne Gold Cup H., showed a new dimension by coming off the pace to get the money here. The chestnut began his 5-year-old campaign with a third-place finish in the GIII Mineshaft H. Feb. 21, then was a troubled fifth in the GII New Orleans H. Mar. 28. A strong second with a 106 Beyer when a game second after setting the pace in Aqueduct's GIII Excelsior S. Apr. 25, he tired to finish a distant ninth in the two-mile Belmont Gold Cup on grass June 5. Settled in sixth through fractions of :23.36 and :47.26 here, the favorite hit the gas while five wide on the far turn and was able to sustain his rally down the lane after drifting in some for a measured success.

LYNAM DUO ON JULY CUP TRAIL

Trainer Eddie Lynam could have two contenders in his bid to land the G1 July Cup for the second straight year running. Successful in last year's Newmarket event with current Darley stallion Slade Power (Ire) Dutch Art {GB}, Lynam is hoping to be represented July 11 by both Anthem Alexander (Ire) (Starspangledbanner {Aus}) and Sole Power (GB) (Kyllachy {GB}). Anthem Alexander ran a sound race in Ascot's inaugural G1 Commonwealth Cup, a run that has left Lynam somewhat perplexed. "I don't know what to make of her Royal Ascot run", reported the Meath trainer. "She travelled like the best horse in the race, she was the last off the bridle, and I thought she was coming to win the race. But I don't know what happened after that. She'll have all the top sprinters to beat in the July Cup but we might tweak the tactics a little bit and let her take her chance at Newmarket." Sole Power, beaten favorite in the G1 King's Stand S., may also take his chance assuming the ground remains quick. However, Lynam feels his best chance of another top-level win will be in the G1 Nunthorpe S at York in August. The trainer also had news about the very smart Agnes Stewart (Ire) (Lawman {FR}), and unfortunately it wasn't positive. "Agnes has gone wrong again and I'd say it's unlikely she'll be able to run this year. It's devastating, but we will now look at a 4-year-old campaign with her," said Lynam. Given normal luck the filly should have been a genuine candidate for top-class middle distance honors this season. As a juvenile her form featured a win in the G2 May Hill S. at Doncaster and a narrow defeat when second in the G1 Fillies' Mile at Newmarket.

Eddie Lynam | Racing Post

DOWNTIME FOR HANNON STARS

Richard Hannon has decided to give two of his high-profile horses a mid-season break following their recent disappointing efforts. Tiggy Wiggy (Ire) (Kodiak {GB}) made a bright start to the season when third in the G1 1000 Guineas at Newmarket but failed to build on that when well-beaten in the G1 Commonwealth Cup at Royal Ascot, and her trainer feels some down time is now required. "I think the ground was probably a little bit quick for Tiggy Wiggy. We scoped her when she came back and there was nothing wrong with her. She was a very good 2-year-old and had a fair bit of racing and I would say she just had a hard race in the Classic." Her stablemate Ivawood (Ire) (Zebedee {GB}) was also third in his Classic, the G1 2000 Guineas, before disappointing in the G3 Jersey S. and, according to Hannon, is also set for a break from the races. Despite his recent reversal Hannon maintains faith in the handsome 3-year-old and has his eye on some lofty late season targets. "Ivawood is having a break, too," Hannon confirmed. "There's lot of nice races for him, including some in France. Physically he couldn't look any better and I have a feeling he'll come back towards the end of the year and then we might look at something like the Breeders' Cup."

Runner-up to Amarillo in this 12 months ago, Donnerschlag returned to reverse the placings on the back of a second in the Listed Benazet-Rennen over this trip at Baden-Baden June 7, which until this race had been the sole black-type win on his resume in 2014. Kept apart from his rivals initially, the chestnut was in front when crossing over to join the remainder and never looked likely to be caught as he maintained the pressure all the way to the line.

NEW KEENELAND/RED MILE FACILITY TAKING SHAPE

by Lucas Marquardt

Construction and renovations at The Red Mile in Lexington, Kentucky are in full swing as the historic Standardbred track and crosstown neighbor Keeneland Association ready to combine their simulcast operations July 15. The Red Mile and Keeneland are also partnering on a 906-terminal historical racing facility at The Red Mile. That facility is expected to open Oct. 1.

Keeneland's Bill Thomason & The Red Mile's Joe Costa

The $40-million project marks a big investment for both Keeneland and The Red Mile, which had seen its facility fall into a state of semi-disrepair in recent years. Some 75,000 sq. ft. of new and renovated space will include a roughly 30,000-sq. ft. Grand Hall to house the historical racing machines. Food capabilities have been greatly expanded, with a number of grab 'n' go-style eateries planned. And the old simulcast facility, which previously was showing the wear-and-tear of age, is now unrecognizable, with greatly expanded seating in a climate-controlled section of the grandstand, and some 160 new flatscreen televisions offering handicappers a broad array of tracks.

"This won't be your father's Red Mile," Keeneland President Bill Thomason said yesterday during a hard-hat tour of the facility.

Thomason isn't wrong. The sleek, modern design, featuring massive canopies at the East and West entrances that are "sculptural interpretations" of sulky frames, is a far cry from the staid brick facade of the old Red Mile. The country-field parking lot is being replaced by a series of paved lots that will allow parking for up to 750 vehicles, as well as a separate parking for tour buses.

Inside, the new Red Mile will be just as modern. The Grand Hall will include a centerpiece bar framed by a towering two-story structure. Architects have paid homage to the previous grandstand by leaving portions of the brick facade exposed, while two existing staircases will be utilized to allow access between the Grand Hall and the Harness track.

Keeneland and The Red Mile are partnering 50/50 on both the historical racing facility and on the simulcast parlor, and it's a partnership that makes plenty of sense. Back in April of 2014, both Keeneland and The Red Mile applied for separate licenses to install historical racing machines. Keeneland applied for 600 machines, The Red Mile for 500. For tracks that sit six miles apart, building separate facilities, and staffing them, was needlessly redundant, officials at both tracks concluded.

"It became obvious to us that, for our community and for our town, it would be best to see if we could work out an arrangement and build it here," said Thomason. "It made so much sense, and we developed a model that could help both of our businesses. They care so much about their horses and their business, and we found we had a lot in common."

Moreover, Keeneland saw advantages of closing its current simulcasting facility in the Keeneland grandstand and shifting its operations to The Red Mile. The latter track sits adjacent to the University of Kentucky and its huge student population, and is just a mile or so from downtown Lexington.

"For us, it's a much more functional space than our current simulcast facility," Thomason said. "Our simulcast patrons want continuity. They don't like to be moved around--they have their sections they like to sit in, they have their TVs, they have their tellers, and we could never provide that kind of continuity. We had to displace them during racing and for sales and the various things we have going on. But now, we have a single facility, and we can work to build new fans out here, which is the goal. It's close to downtown and easier to get to on a daily basis for someone getting off work."

Simulcast facility at The Red Mile

The Red Mile, meanwhile, got a well-respected partner with vast resources to help reestablish itself on the local entertainment landscape. Originally built in 1875, The Red Mile hosts Harness Racing's Grand Circuit meet in early October, which draws some of the sport's biggest stables and best horses. The Red Mile hosts, among several other prestigious races, the third leg of the Trotting Triple Crown during its two-week meet, the Kentucky Futurity.

The new simulcast facility will be unique in the respect that there will be separate windows for Harness and Thoroughbred wagering. Keeneland will get all the Thoroughbred revenues; The Red Mile will retain all revenues from Standardbred wagering. Signals from Thoroughbred and Harness tracks will be interspersed on the TVs in the parlor, however.

One benefit to Keeneland's simulcast patrons is that they will now be able to bet on tracks that operate at night. Keeneland usually closed down its simulcast facility at 5 or 6 p.m., and The Red Mile's facility, which is open at night, didn't accept wagers on Thoroughbred tracks.

"You won't find a Thoroughbred track here you can't bet, any time of day, seven days a week," said Thomason. Cont. p2

The project has already been a boon to the local economy. Forty of the 41 contractors utilized are Kentucky-based, the new facilities were designed by a Kentucky firm, and over 200 Kentuckians were hired, according to The Red Mile. And it could continue to be a big employer in the Lexington area--two-hundred full-time employees are expected to be hired.

"And the great thing is that we have room to expand here," said Thomason.

Keeneland is currently planning on a full slate of events at The Red Mile for this fall's Breeders' Cup World Championships Oct. 30-31. The TDN will revisit The Red Mile when the historical racing facility is up and running and detail all the festivities.

Fasig-Tipton has catalogued 284 selected yearlings for The New York Bred Sale, scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 15 and 16. Sessions will begin each evening at 7:00 p.m. in the Humphrey S. "The quality in this year's catalogue has ticked up once again, and prospective buyers will find horses to campaign within the lucrative N.Y. Bred racing program, as well as the sport's elite levels. One only has to look at our featured graduates on this year's catalogue cover, which include Eclipse Champion Dayatthespa and leading 3-year-old colt Upstart, to see the type of horse produced by the New York Bred Sale these days." The catalogue can be viewed online at fasigtipton.com and within the EquineLine sales catalogue app. Print catalogues will be available from all Fasig-Tipton offices by July 7.

SELENITE (f, 4, Cosmonaut--Offhand Remark, by Western Expression), opened 2015 with a third-place effort in the May 2 GII Sheepshead Bay S., and was ninth in the course-and-trip GII New York S. last time out June 5. Unhurried early, the 8-1 shot was settled off the pace as longshot Agawa (Curlin) set pedestrian splits. Selenite rallied four wide into the stretch and was closing steadily from the outside as Evidently (Smart Strike), last throughout much of the race, was bottled up and looking for racing room before bullying her way between horses to burst clear and best Selenite by one length. The stewards disqualified Evidently and placed the gray filly fifth, promoting Selenite to the victory. The 7-5 favorite battled on the front end through fractions of :23.64 and :48.78. Capriana took charge into the stretch and powered clear with ease, romping home by 10 1/2 lengths. Where's the Risk (Kitalpha) was second. The winner was a $55,000 SARAUG yearling. FIRE AWAY (c, 3, War Front--Salute {MGSP, $103,838}, by Unbridled), off the board in his first three starts, was coming off a late-running third-place effort over one mile of this turf course June 5. The tepid 2-1 favorite stalked the early pace as Lottery Ticket (Bernardini) was well-held through modest splits. Forced to wait for racing room on the turn, he was tipped out three wide in upper stretch and powered to the lead in the final furlong to win by 3/4 lengths over Good Respose (Medaglia d'Oro). Lottery Ticket faded to last. The 5-2 shot asserted control soon after the break, quickly opened a clear advantage and was five lengths in front through a half in :46.98. That lead evaporated leaving the backstretch, but he battled back bravely along the rail in the stretch to best favored Tale of the Heart (Tale of the Cat) by one length. OUR CARAVAN (g, 4, Daaher--Alwaan, by Elusive Quality), winner of last year's Calder Derby, was making his first start since running second in a Parx optional claimer last December. The bay gelding was the 9-5 second choice in the short three-horse field as the returning Normandy Invasion (Tapit) was sent off at 1-5 in his first start for trainer Larry Jones. Our Caravan jumped out to the early lead and floated Normandy Invasion, second in the 2013 GI Wood Memorial, wide as he drifted out some eight paths into the first turn. The pacesetter was pursued by the favorite through fractions of :24.08 and and :48.00. Normandy Invasion pounced to the lead turning for home and looked set to romp home, but Our Caravan was determined on the rail and grimly fought back in the dying strides to best his more-fancied rival by 3/4 lengths. Our Caravan was a $190,000 FTSAUG yearling. He was challenged by Flying Around (Cowboy Cal), who snuck through along the rail on the turn and was carried out some six wide as that foe drifted out into the lane. The two battled down the stretch with Flying Around just getting his head in front on the wire. The first-place finisher was demoted by the stewards for interference, giving Range Rider the victory. Jack Disney Passes Away:

Jack Disney, a longtime sports writer with the now-defunct Los Angeles Herald Examiner, who went on to serve as Director of Publicity at Hollywood Park and who was an integral part of Santa Anita's publicity efforts for many years, passed away at his home in Irvine on Monday at the age of 80 following a long bout with Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease. An avid racing enthusiast from his days at Fairfax High School in Los Angeles, Disney was hired on at the Herald Examiner at the age of 19 in 1954 and, for the better part of 35 years, covered USC football and basketball, the Lakers, Raiders, Angels, Dodgers and boxing at both the Olympic Auditorium and the Forum. "Jack's love and enthusiasm for sports was evident in all of his reporting," said former Santa Anita General Manager George Haines. "Jack built thousands of relationships over the years here in L.A. and these were of great benefit to him and all of us here at Santa Anita. He was just a class act and he was very well liked by our jockeys and horsemen. He will be sorely missed and my best wishes go to his wife and family." Disney enjoyed some of his greatest success late in life as a Thoroughbred owner with multiple graded winner On the Acorn (GB). In addition to his wife, Emily and brother, Doug, Disney is survived by his sons, Rick and Mitchell, and two grandchildren. Services are pending.

on today's European racing scene

1.30 Deauville, Mdn, €25,000, 2yo, c/g, 7fT

CRAVEN'S LEGEND (IRE) (Invincible Spirit {Ire}) was the second highest-priced lot at last year's Arqana August sale when purchased on behalf of leading South African owner Markus Jooste's Mayfair Speculators for €1.1 million. The Andre Fabre trainee is a half-brother to the 2013 G1 Irish Oaks victress and G1 Prix de Diane runner-up Chicquita (Ire) (Montjeu {Ire}), herself the most expensive horse ever sold in Ireland when going for €6 million as part of the Paul Makin dispersal at Goffs' 2013 November sale, and he faces a cast of 10 in this eagerly awaited unveiling.

HORSE GREELEY RELOCATING TO ARGENTINA

Horse Greeley (Mr. Greeley--Chile Chatte, by Storm Cat), sire of GII Remsen S. winner Leave The Light On and multiple graded stakes winner Clearly Now, has been sold to continue his stallion career at Haras La Leyenda in Argentina. A Grade II winner himself when capturing the Del Mar Futurity for trainer Richard Mandella in 2006, Horse Greeley has been standing at Claiborne Farm in Kentucky and La Leyenda's representative Alberto Stein is excited to be welcoming such a promising stallion to Argentina. "The Mr. Prospector-sire line has been very successful at providing top-class Group 1 and Group 2 winners on the dirt in Argentina, commented Stein. "We at Haras La Leyenda have been searching for the right stallion for Argentina from this great line for two years. In Horse Greeley we are sure we have found the right stallion at the right time. He is young, proven, an imposing individual with a very solid record of siring black-type winners and Apex A Runners in the U.S. from his previous base at Claiborne Farm. We are very grateful to Seth and Walker Hancock and Bernie Sams at Claiborne for giving us the opportunity to buy Horse Greeley to continue his career in Argentina. We would also like to thank Tom Clark, of Thomas Clark Bloodstock, who represented us in this transaction. Horse Greeley will arrive in Argentina on July 15 and we look forward to showing him to clients and potential customers the second week of August."
